Reflection.

Reflection on the Gospel- 26th Sunday in Ordinary Time Year A, 1 October 2017 (Matthew 21:28-32)

Mercy Sister Veronica Lawson suggests that changing one's mind can be an act of courage and humility, even heroism, particularly if it involves abandoning a self-serving direction for the sake of justice or the "common good".

What does one do with passive-resistant behaviour? This is a question that many of us have to confront at some time because there are people in every walk of life who make an art form of saying yes and failing to follow through with action. Such people can seriously undermine the most worthy of projects or plans. We meet them in today's gospel. And what do we make of the slow starters, those who take time to come on board? We see them in today's gospel as well. Changing one's mind is not greatly valued in our society. It is seen as a sign of weakness. For evidence of this, one has only to listen to the taunts in parliament when one of our political leaders changes course in the light of new information. I suggest that changing one's mind can be an act of great courage and humility, even heroism. This is particularly so if it involves abandoning a self-serving direction for the sake of justice or compassion or the "common good".

Jesus addresses most of his parables to the disciples. In this instance, however, his audience comprises the chief priests and Jewish elders who have challenged his authority. Earlier in the chapter, this same audience is allied against Jesus (21:15). They are angered by the "amazing things" he does and by the public recognition he receives from the children in the temple. The parable is part of his response to these temple authorities. Like the second son, the temple authorities profess to do the will of God, but their actions belie their words. Jesus spells out the meaning of the parable as it relates to the disjunction between what they say and what they do. They have rejected the prophet John who came to them "in the way of righteousness". The tax collectors and prostitutes, "sinners" from the perspective of the authorities, accepted John's message, albeit belatedly like the first son, and are making their way into God's empire "before" the guardians of the religious institutions.

Voluntary changes in behaviour often come from a change of heart, from the "metanoia" of the gospel. There are some few who change course and make of their whole life, retrospectively, what they opt for as their future. Blessed Oscar Romero, former archbishop of San Salvador, for example, was initially slow to speak out against his government's suppression of basic human rights. He knew the cost of opposing the authorities. On March 23, 1980, he called on the soldiers, as Christians, to stop carrying out the government's repressive orders. On the following day, he was assassinated. There is always a cost in the pursuit of justice, generally less dramatic than the cost to Romero. Today's parable invites us to bring our actions into line with what we profess as Christian disciples, whatever the cost.

Catholic Social Justice Council website.
(www.socialjustice.catholic.org.au). Copies of the Statement are available on the Paper Table.

Parish Pastoral Council.

In the Pope's document "The Joy of the Gospel" he has a dream that Church's customs, ways of doing things, times and schedules, language and structures can be suitably channelled for the evangelization of today's world rather than for her self-preservation. To strive and survive as a Church, as a Parish, as a faith believing individual we have to rise out of our current bunker mentality. To fight the good fight...to run the race to the finish...we cannot be mere spectators in the grandstand looking on. If you have any ideas or concerns within the Parish please raise them with your pastoral councillors personally or alternatively send an email to bridge@bne.catholic.net.au with a heading 'For the attention of the Pastoral Council'.

Vocation Views.

We cannot act overly proud just because we have responded to God's call. Responding is our duty and source of happiness: serving God with perseverance and happiness fills us.

Prayer Blog - 'Our Parish Year of Prayer 2017'.

Please check the latest Parish Blog updates! We have a new one from Wendy. www.stjosephsbrackenridge.com/blog Parishioners, if they wish, may write a short piece on how they pray and share reflections online on our parish blog. A hard copy will be placed on the noticeboard in the Church. This week we published a prayerful reflection from Wendy entitled 'Ribbons & Shoelaces' and, in the weeks that follow, we will publish a reflection from the Men's Prayer Group. A hard copy will be placed on the noticeboard in the Church.

Persons are Gifts.

Persons are gifts which the Creator God sends to us ... wrapped.

I am a person. Therefore I am a gift. A gift to myself first of all. God my Creator gave myself to me.

Maybe I've never seen the wonderful gift that I am.

Could God's gift be anything but beautiful?

I love the gifts which those who love me give to me.

Why not the gift of me?

Every meeting of persons is an exchange of gifts.

Love is a relationship between persons who see themselves as they really are:

Gifts given by God to be given to others.
